Dear Sir:

I am in receipt of your letter of Nov. 5th, asking for a letter of reference for a former employee of mine. The young man in question named Leon Day.

It gives me pleasure to tell you he was a valuable employee, and the reason he is not with me still is due to the fact our season has closed.

He came to The Eagles when he first left home in 1935. He has been with us since, and never once has he been found lacking in any respect. He is an exception in so far as professional baseball is concerned, and is at all times a perfect gentlemen. Where cooperation is concerned, it is hard to describe him. He plays in every game, and has never refused to do any thing he is called on for. He was our best pitcher (called the best in the league by the newspapers), but often had to pitch one game of a double-header for us, and play outfield during the next one, due to injuries or sickness of team mates.

please call them re: any further information I can give you

Very Truly Yours
